To whom it may concern;

It has been our pleasure to twice sponsor and host Dean Jacobs for week-long visits to the Ballard area in central Iowa. His thought-provoking stories and inspirational messages are both entertaining and informative but more importantly will make people of any age reflect upon their own dreams and abilities. At Huxley Communications, we specifically find his message to coincide with our cooperative's mission of helping to build a strong community that thrives on communication and involvement from its members. Dean's programs place emphasis on pursuing passions, looking for the good side of life, and challenging individuals to become better human beings by experiencing and sharing all that the world has to offer and explore.

In a time when our society is bombarded by seemingly endless amounts of negative and shock-value news and reporting in all forms of media, Dean has the exceptional ability to deliver a personal message of encouragement and hope with perfect articulation. One that I personally feel people need to hear more than ever.

I would recommend anyone looking for a unique and inspiring educational program to seek out Dean Jacobs and consider inviting him into your school district or organization.

Genuinely,
